

The Kingdom Agency

A license to deal the Great Commission

OK, I want you guys to look at your faith like this: Jesus chose you. He made Himself known to you. You learned you can love and trust Him with your life so much that you entered into real communion and conversation with Him.

But He didn't just forgive your sins—He recruited you. He called you into His Agency. Not an earthly agency, but the Kingdom Agency.

Then He commissioned you. He handed you a license to carry and deal the Gospel. You're now an agent of Jesus Christ.

Your badge is the name of Jesus Christ. Your authority comes from Heaven. Your assignment comes from the King. Your power comes from the Holy Spirit.

God the Father is the Authority over the Agency. Jesus Christ is the Director who commissioned you. The Holy Spirit is your Counselor, Guide, and Power in the field.

Every believer has been commissioned. You don't have part-time Christianity. You're a full-time agent representing Jesus Christ wherever you go.

Every great agency has leadership, training, accountability, and field offices. That's where faithful local churches come in.

A faithful local church can be hard to find, but by God's grace, you've found Beacon. Think of Beacon as your field office—the place where you park your license, where you're trained, sharpened, encouraged, and held accountable.

The mission doesn't stop at Beacon's doors. Here, you're equipped and sent back into the world to carry out your assignment.

Your job is to introduce people to Jesus, bring them into His assembly, and let God use you in the work of seeing souls saved.

Every morning, you report for duty.

Prayer is your briefing.

The Word of God is your operations manual. The Holy Spirit is your guide in the field.

Let's get to work.

Every conversation is an assignment with eternal implications. Every invitation has eternal value. Every act of obedience is part of the mission. Every opportunity to share Christ is Kingdom business.

Every person you point to Christ is someone God may use your faithfulness to reach with the Gospel.

You don't represent yourself. You represent the King of Kings.

This isn't just another job. This is Kingdom work—the greatest calling ever given to mankind. There is no greater commission, no greater mission, and no greater privilege than working for the King.

There are eternal rewards attached to faithfulness. One day, every faithful agent will stand before Jesus. The greatest reward won't be anything this world can offer—it will be hearing:

"Well done, good and faithful servant."

Until then...

Protect the badge.

Honor the King.

Stay faithful to your assignment.

And never forget—

You're an agent of Jesus Christ.
